Car Veers Off a Wall, No One Hurt

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — A car sailed off a seawall and landed upside down 15 feet below — and all 11 persons in the vehicle escaped serious injury. Police said the vehicle collided seconds earlier with another automobile. Its three occupants also emerged with only scratches. The second car stayed in the street.

Think Like Mao in China or Be Purged

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Chou Hsin-li is a district manager of the "Shanghai Municipal Fruit & Sundry Goods Co." He is a crashing success.

He is a success because he sold ripe watermelons on a glutted market. He did this by applying Mao Tze-tung's thinking "on contradiction."

"On contradiction" was written about Communist tactics in war, but Chou Hsin-li has found one can apply it to watermelons.

Chou wrote about this in an article entitled "Let us talk about the philosophy of selling watermelons in the big cities."

It appeared in Liberation Army Daily — leading voice of a current Chinese Communist party purge — and other papers. People in high places are being purged because they do not sufficiently value Mao's thinking.

It's not only in politics and the sale of watermelons, either. The three nuclear explosions. How did they do it? They studied the problem. They've had Mao Tze-tung's thinking.

Mao's thinking is the battle cry of the purge aimed, as the press puts it, at "eradication of wrong attitudes." Wrong attitudes are held by revisionists who think like Russians and do not seriously study Mao Tze-tung's works. The Russians have been having a bit of fun about this at Chinese expense.

In the summer of 1963 the Municipal Fruit & Sundry Goods Co. was inundated by watermelons and the staff felt "overwhelmed and simply hopeless."

Watermelons rotted. Came summer, 1964. Chou Hsin-li sent his staff to investigate. It was awed by the prospect of a 50 per cent rise in ripe summertime watermelons.

Mao had written that "there is nothing that does not contain contradictions."

Well, says Chou, you "make a careful analysis of the contradictions." You conclude that "the problem is in contradiction between the heavy rush of supplies in a limited period and the use of the sales force. This exposure of contradictions helped the staff to see the size and nature of the problems to be tackled."

Mao had said one must "concentrate on a superior force to destroy the enemy forces one by one."

Watermelons were the superior force. The manager enlisted hundreds of his staff to concentrate on watermelons, forgetting the "sundry goods." They gave it the old Chinese hard sell.

When he saw the watermelons selling, reported manager Chou, "It made me cry."

"It made me realize deeply that the reason for our success in selling watermelons was completely attributed to the invincible might of Mao Tze-tung's thinking," said Chou.

Prospects are for more ripe watermelons this summer than ever before.

Says manager Chou: "We organize the masses of cadres to expose fully the contradiction involved in the sale of watermelons and set up a program for studying Mao Tze-tung's works for those workers who are frightened at the thought of having too many watermelons to sell."

A high percentage of cyclists die from head injuries sustained in accidents. Wearing of safety helmets could prevent many of these fatalities.

Tension in Europe Has Eased Some

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China's a problem, the war in Viet Nam is a mess, Africa is unpredictable, this country bubbles and boils over civil rights, but tensions in Europe recently have eased greatly.

The best proof is the Brussels meeting of 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries' foreign ministers. If the heat was on they wouldn't have the time for the kind of debating and posturing they're doing now.

The best weathervane is French President Charles de Gaulle, who wasn't there. Tall De Gaulle, always fidgety about the image of French greatness, decided earlier this year European conditions have improved vastly since the NATO allies first teamed up in 1949 against a possible Soviet attack.

He didn't like the idea of French troops under allied command—integrated forces, they were called—and he couldn't endure the thought of NATO bases, mostly American, on French soil.

NATO with the bases, he told NATO, feeling he could say so now in a safer Europe. He announced he would pull French forces out of the integrated set, meaning France and no one else would have a say over French troops.

NATO has its headquarters in France. Out with that, he said. At the same time he said he wouldn't pull France out of the NATO alliance. This was really having it both ways.

France, militarily, would no longer be part of the common NATO defense. But if the Soviet Union attacked, France would depend on NATO allies to defend her. De Gaulle is a man who has played it both ways for quite a while.

He was so jealous of French authority over all things French he had withdrawn its Mediterranean and Atlantic fleets from NATO; assigned NATO only small air and ground forces of about 60,000 men; refused to permit non-French naval personnel from certain high command posts. And he did other similar things.

In fairness it should be remembered France stood beside the United States in the Berlin crises and the Cuban missile crisis.

In view of De Gaulle's demands the remaining NATO nations had to arrange to take their headquarters out of France and re-cement the organization which his actions had badly shattered. They had to remove the NATO Council, political arm of the organization, from Paris, too, although De Gaulle didn't demand that and, instead, invited the council to remain.

This week the 14 NATO countries' foreign minister met, including Dean Rusk, U.S. secretary of state, and agreed to move NATO's military headquarters to Belgium.

But, since they weren't under pressure to remove the NATO Council from Paris, they didn't. They discussed it, disagreed on what to do, and decided they'd take it up again in their meeting next October.

Something else bugged them, too, but since there was no crisis and they were under no pressure, they skipped around that also. This was the idea that there should be a conference between NATO and the Communists' Warsaw Pact countries which are having their own meeting in Moscow now.

The ministers would have danced to a faster and far more nervous tune if, as De Gaulle said, times hadn't changed. Their only trouble is they don't know how long the times will stay changed.

Dominican Leftists Trying to Rally

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Dominican leftists are reported trying to rally support for widespread riots to protest the election of presidential candidate Joaquin Balaguer.

Informed sources said the Castroite 14th of June Movement hopes to set off the disturbances next Tuesday, seventh anniversary of the abortive 1959 invasion that gave the faction its name.

The question of contesting the results of the election has caused a rift in the Dominican Revolutionary Party (PRD) of defeated candidate Juan Bosch. Balaguer won last week's contest with a margin of nearly a quarter million votes, but the official results have not been released and Bosch has not conceded publicly.

Court in Endorsement of Pilkinton

In other action at the Quorum Court meet Tuesday the following resolution was passed by both Democratic and Republican members endorsing the candidacy of James H. Pilkinton for the office of Lt. Governor:

RESOLUTION
WHEREAS, a native son of Hempstead County is a candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Arkansas; and

WHEREAS, he is a Christian gentleman, an experienced lawyer and jurist, and appreciates the problems facing the counties of the state; now

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE QUORUM COURT OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY, ARKANSAS, duly assembled in special session:

1. That the members of this body commend to the people of Arkansas for their consideration the candidacy of Judge James H. Pilkinton of Hope for Lieutenant Governor of Arkansas; and recommend his election to that high office.

2. That this endorsement is based not upon the fact that Judge Pilkinton is a member of any particular political party, but because we believe him to be duly qualified for the office he seeks. We know that his ability, his ethics and his judgment are of the highest type.

CERTIFICATE
I, the undersigned, County Clerk of Hempstead County, Arkansas, and Ex-Officio Clerk of the Quorum Court of Hempstead County, Arkansas, hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true, correct and compared copy of the excerpts of the minutes of the special session of the Hempstead Quorum Court held at Hope, Arkansas, on June 7, 1966, as reflected by the minutes of said meeting.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' News special Tuesday night was called "The Anti-Americans," but it often looked like a clever bit of salvage work for some odds and ends of interesting film that didn't seem to fit conveniently into any network niches.

There were excerpts from a television documentary shown in France that looked at the Vietnamese conflict in what, from an American viewpoint, was almost a hostile attitude toward us. There were excerpts from a British documentary featuring a professional gadfly that portrayed American life by focusing exclusively on used car lots, garish billboards and ugly architecture.

There was an interesting feature shot by CBS' News showing a visit of a U.S. Information Service team to a northern village in Thailand. There were also excerpts from a USIS propaganda film explaining the Vietnamese war and which has been shown widely abroad.

All of these were enlightening and some — like the British documentary — were annoying. But neither together nor singly did the program fulfill its promise to take a look at our nation's image abroad.

Some isolated instances of anti-American feeling were shown. There was an unruly mob in Santo Domingo burning our flag. There were some serious young Mexican university students complaining about U.S. imperialism. There were some street interviews in London during a protest march about Viet Nam. But it was not an impressive demonstration of anti-American feeling.

On the other hand, the demonstration of pro-American feeling was no more convincing — not a Levittown, a supermarket and a drug store in France nor yet a mob of writhing, frugging youngsters with long hair and short skirts in London.

Even narrator Charles Collingwood had his problem trying to pull the parts into a related whole. He abruptly switched emphasis at the end, commenting on the large numbers of young people, both here and abroad, who are involved in protests — "the newest of the emerging peoples, youth."

— and suggested that for their sake we be not too insistent on maintaining the status quo. ABC will launch something different in the way of a daytime serial drama at the end of this month.

It is called "Dark Shadows" and instead of the usual physical and emotional problems of soap operas, it will go in for the dark, the mysterious, for intrigue and downright scary effects.

Producers describe all this as "in the tradition of the Gothic novel," and set in a Maine fishing village dominated by a huge stone mansion.

Just how all this will go with the ladies of the audience is now in the lap of the politakers.

Memory Is the Only True Fountain of Youth, You Can Select Any Age Desired

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the only true fountain of youth.

But you don't have to stay at any particular age. You can stray at will through all the levels of time you have lived through, from earliest bewildered childhood to the confusion of today.

Perhaps it gives you a feeling of warmth to pause and look back and remember when—

In 1921 Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart," starred in a film version of "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

That same year, during the depression that followed World War I, U.S. Steel reduced wages to 30 cents an hour.

Everybody felt pretty sure that, no matter how much the world changed, the penny postcard would always be with us.

In the era of silent movies a juvenile delinquent was a kid who had to be thrown out of the theater for pitching spitballs at the lady up front who played the piano.

The corner grocery store sold more lard than it did butter. When you couldn't even afford lard to spread on your breakfast toast, brother, you came from a poor family.

A feather bed was a sign of prosperity. Only the educated suffered from arthritis. Everybody else over 40 suffered from "the rheumatiz."

The best known one-way street in America was the proverbial one that led over the hill to the poorhouse.

When the doctor made a home call, every small kid in the block yearned to peek into his little black bag to see if it contained a squirming new baby. After all, that's where they came from.

The advantage of being awakened in the morning by a rooster rather than an alarm clock, as village wits pointed out, was that "You don't have to remember to wind the rooster."

People seemed to talk more about how to get rid of warts than how to avoid having coronary attacks.

Powerful and Fierce Gorillas, largest of the man-like apes, can bend iron bars and will fight fiercely if they are cornered or if their families are threatened.

THE PRESS AND CORBETT MASK

Here's what Editor-Publisher Bill Wood of the Grand Prairie Herald, Hazen, Ark., has to say about Corbett Mask:

The Grand Prairie Herald Thursday, May 12, 1966

DR. CORBETT MASK — OUR CHOICE

As a rule we usually reserve our personal political opinions until the week before an election. This gives each candidate time to state his positions on practically every matter and thereby gives us a better chance to see what kind of man we are voting to elect as our representative.

Circumstances in this year's election however are warranting an exception to this rule. A home-town man, Dr. Corbett Mask, is seeking the position of Lieutenant Governor. We believe it to be highly unnecessary to commend Dr. Mask to any voter in Prairie County. Although we are sure there are those—even among his homefolks—who will vote against him, we cannot concede more than 100 votes in that direction.

With mixed emotions we saw him enter the political arena, which is not entirely new to him as he has served many years as Chaplain of the state senate — the same body he will be called to preside over when elected. Dr. Mask is a dedicated man whom we feel is truly offering himself as a service to the state and its people. In all of our dealings with him we have found him to be honest, fair and trustworthy.

And so, it is with the highest confidence that we can support Dr. Mask this early in the race. Regardless of the caliber of any of his opponents — we believe Dr. Mask has the finest qualifications and best credentials any candidate ever offered seeking a public office. It is not to his homefolks — because they know him as we do — but to Arkansans everywhere that we seek support for Dr. Corbett Mask as Lieutenant Governor.

Qualified Through Experience

Youth Asked For It

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off. Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US! this newspaper.

Putting Parents On: Better Than Being Put Upon

Dear Helen: You said all young people are "limit-testers" and want rules to see how close they can come to breaking them. That explains a lot of this big deal at colleges about "The Pill for All," and "Free Speech" and these "surveys" on the sex revolution, etc.

We know we've got adults on the run, and we're testing to see how far and how fast they'll run. Every time they cave in, we progress to the next shocker. Now it's "drugs on the campus." Big deal!

You know something? There is a lot of talk about "uninforceable rules," and college students join any bandwagon that comes along if they think they can put the old folks on, and start them wringing the hands. But if "The Pill" wins, there won't be any great change. Even the unmarried students who voted for dispensing it freely will still make up their OWN minds, and they won't get promiscuous or shack 14-up, any more than they would have before. They just want to shoot down a rule, that's all. Mainly to scare the sox of middle-agers, and see headlines in the paper.

This whole "youth rebellion" is a lot more talk than action, and you hit it on the nose when you call it "limit testing."

We're playing a game: "Fool the Parents" in reverse, scaring them about things that will not happen, rather than — as in the past — hiding the truth about things that do happen.

If adults bothered to check, instead of reading the scare articles, they'd find out we do a lot more studying than they realize, and if an overall one percent of college students are on pot, I'll be surprised. — Putting You On.

Dear PYO: We-e-ell, I'd rather be put on than put upon, as many parents think they are these days.

And my mail indicates you may be right. Young people are taking pot shots at every rule in the book; they've scared a lot of adults green with their "Rebellions"; but the standards they set for themselves — after society has caved in — remain amazingly high.

For the most part, that is: the way-out 10 or 15 percent who hit the news give you sly guys a chance to keep putting us on. — H.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a reformed rock 'n' roller turn his back on a half-million a year and find success and happiness?

In the case of Tommy Steele, the answer is a resounding yes. In terms of pop music chronology, Tommy was a Cro-Magnon Beate, a flop-haired son of a gun who was among the first to evoke screeches from teenage types in the British Isles. How he kicked the habit is one of the nicer success stories of present-day show biz.

Tommy Steele is now making his first Hollywood film, "The Happiest Millionaire," Walt Disney's most ambitious musical since the fabulous "Mary Poppins."

A friendly chap with a smile that seems to encompass half his face, British-born Tommy explained the steps that brought him here:

"I happened to be in the navy and visiting the United States in 1956 when the rock 'n' roll thing was just getting its start. When I got back to England, I fooled around with it a bit, writing songs with Lionel Bart."

"I played guitar quite well indeed, and I did the songs as a satire on the whole rock 'n' roll business. All of a sudden I was a bloomin' success."

But screaming fans and annual earnings of $500,000 were not enough to please him. A glance to the future gave him the shudders, and he was determined not to become a rocking has-been.

"That was why I entered my wilderness period, when life did smite me," Tommy explained. "I left the business behind and went off to Australia to attempt a whole new career. I did a two-hour show of songs as I wanted to sing them."

"I realized I would need more background if I was to succeed in the things I wanted to do. So I went back to London, joined the repertory at the Old Vic, and studied dancing. Then came another wilderness period, when I had trouble convincing producers I was not just a straight actor."

He finally was cast as the ambitious Kipps in the London musical, "Half a Sixpence." The ebullience of his singing and dancing, helped project the show to hit ranks, and Tommy repeated his triumph in New York.

Disney sent for Tommy as a possibility for the Irish butler in "The Happiest Millionaire." Flying to Hollywood on a Sunday with his wife, Tommy put on a four-hour show in the Disney living room. He explained exactly how his part could be improved.

British Traitor Is Dead at 57

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Capt. Norman Baillie-Stewart, the first Lord Haw Haw of World War II, is dead.

Baillie-Stewart, 57, collapsed in a Dublin street Tuesday and died without regaining consciousness. He had been living in suburban Raheny since he was released from a British prison in 1949.

He was convicted in 1933 of supplying Germany with British military secrets. He was released in 1937 and went to Germany.

At the outbreak of the war, he began the Nazi propaganda broadcasts which William Joyce later took over. After the war Baillie-Stewart served nearly four years of a five-year British sentence for treason. Joyce was hanged.

It is not known when the first direct blood transfusion in humans was made but up until the last quarter of the 19th century only 347 human blood transfusions had been recorded. There were 129 cases in which animal blood was used. Blood transfusion was considered only a last resort until the turn of the century when Karl Landsteiner demonstrated human blood groups and their compatibility in transfusion.

By JACOBY & SON

"Well," said the disgruntled expert, "as usual I played brilliantly but with conspicuous lack of success. I won the club lead with my king and laid down the ace of hearts. East showed out but I wasn't dismayed. I had a chance to work a triple grand coup. I led a club to dummy and took a trump finesse. Back to dummy with the last club to lead and ruff the ace of spades. My next play was to overtake my king of diamonds with dummy's ace in order to ruff the king of spades. Back to dummy with another diamond to ruff the queen of spades and I was left with one diamond and the king-jack of hearts. East was left with queen-nine of hearts and a mystery card. If it were a diamond, I was home. I led my diamond to dummy's jack and East had to follow. Out came the jack of spades from dummy. East had to ruff and I overruffed and picked up his queen of trumps."

It didn't seem to us that the expert had been conspicuously unsuccessful. We don't think much of his seven-heart bid. His partner had asked about kings and if our friend had bid six spades to show three of them, North would have had no trouble counting 13 tricks at no-trump and would have bid the cinch no-trump grand slam, but what's wrong with making a grand slam by means of a triple grand coup? We asked what the trouble was. He replied, "The game was duplicate. Almost every other North-South pair got to seven no-trump and the score for seven hearts was way below average."

Aaron Gets His 20th Homer in Braves' Win

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Aaron's appetite is improved — and so is his home run hitting.

The little Atlanta Braves star, who says a minor internal operation in the off-season enabled him to gain weight, continued his home run assault Wednesday night by belting a pair, one with the bases loaded, as the Braves beat the New York Mets 7-6.

Aaron who now has a major league leading 20 homers and 48 runs batted in, said that since the operation he is eating better and now weighs 183 pounds—10 more than he did at the end of last season and five above his normal playing weight.

With the added strength, the perennial all-star is admittedly off to the fastest start of his career. His highest homer (44) and RBI (132) totals were in 1957, the year he was named Most Valuable Player.

Houston beat San Francisco 6-1 and sent Juan Marichal to his second straight defeat, the Chicago Cubs trounced Los Angeles 8-1. St. Louis walloped Pittsburgh 1-5 and Philadelphia outslug Cincinnati 10-6 in other National League action.

In the American League, Cleveland edged the New York Yankees 2-1, Kansas City defeated Minnesota 5-4, California nipped the Chicago White Sox 1-0. Detroit beat Boston 5-4 in 11 innings and Baltimore outlasted Washington 6-5 in 14 innings.

The second game of the two-night affair between Baltimore and Washington was stopped because of a curfew with Washington leading 5-4. The game will resume tonight.

Aaron got his bases empty homer in the first inning and put the Braves ahead 5-0 with his grand slam in the third. He also doubled home his sixth run of the game in the fifth and added a single, giving him a 4-for-5 night and raising his average to .296.

Mack Jones hit his sixth homer for the Braves in the seventh, and it proved to be the winner when Chuck Hiller belted a pinch hit homer for the Mets in the ninth. The Mets also scored three times in the third and a second time in the fifth.

Trailing 1-0, Houston broke loose for four runs in the sixth against Marichal, the Giants' 10-game winner. John Batesman's two-run single climaxed the outburst. Marichal was relieved in the seventh when the first two men singled. The Astros got two runs in the ninth.

Randy Hundley's first major league grand slam highlighted a five-run fourth inning against Los Angeles' Don Drysdale who was trying to even his record at 5-5. Dick Ellsworth went the distance for the Cubs and picked up his second victory in 10 decisions.

St. Louis wasted little time against Pittsburgh, driving Narn Law from the mound in the first inning when the Cards scored six runs.

Jillian Javier led the Cardinals attack with a homer, triple and single and three RBIs. Willie Stargell hit his 10th homer for the Pirates and added a double and single.

Philadelphia got a three-run homer from Tony Gonzalez, a two-run homer from Richie Allen and a bases empty blast by Clay Dalrymple in outslugging Cincinnati. The Reds got a two-run homer from Dick Simpson and bases empty blasts by Deron Johnson and Jim Coker.

Football Loops Plan Complete Merger by '70

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The National and American football leagues have linked hands in a merger plan that will produce a gigantic 26-team league and end an era that turned college glamour boys into instant millionaires.

The marriage between the 15-team NFL and the nine-team AFL took place at a hastily called ceremony Wednesday that ended their bitter six-year battle and, at the same time, left this year's college crop standing at the altar.

"It looks like I graduated just in time," said Joe Namath, the New York Jets' $400,000 quarterback and the original instant millionaire.

"I think large contracts will be harder to come by for everybody without the competition between the leagues."

"I guess you'd have to say I just got in under the wire," said Mike Garrett, the Heisman trophy winner from Southern California who signed for a reported $300,000 with the Kansas City Chiefs. "I'm sure lucky."

"I'll tell you one thing," added Namath. "I'm really looking forward to that title game between the two leagues."

The title game will take place at the end of the 1966 season — and will mark the first time teams from the two leagues will meet on the playing field. The NFL and AFL will hold their separate title games before meeting in the world championship game.

That was one of the key items listed in the plans announced Wednesday that eventually will expand the new league to 26 teams in 25 cities by 1970, under the supervision of Pete Rozelle. The peace plan was seen as a victory for both leagues.

The NFL will be paid a total that will reach in the neighborhood of $25 million when the money from the new franchises is added.

The six-year-old AFL ends its long search for recognition and a claim to parity with the 44-year-old NFL.

And both leagues cut off the multi-million dollar war for player talent, ended the escalating raiding battle and insured themselves of additional revenue through the championship game meeting.

While solving most problems the plan did, however, leave two big questions unanswered — which would be the next franchises and what would be the position of Al Davis, AFL commissioner, in the merger set-up.

There were no concrete answers but it appeared that the leading franchise contenders were New Orleans, Seattle, and Cincinnati.

Davis was not available for comment but it was considered doubtful that he would take a position in the new alignment. Friends predicted that he would return to coaching.

Also up in the air was the question of whether the merger might bring antitrust action from the Justice Department which said in Washington that it would take a "close look" at the plan. Rozelle said he did not think there would be any problems.

"We have talked with Senator Hart, D-Mich., and Rep. Celler, D-N.Y., who are chairman of the judiciary committees in their particular houses," Rozelle pointed out.

"I feel this realignment certainly isn't a risk and isn't unwarranted. Football is a sport with certain business aspects. I don't see where enlargement makes it more of a business."

Rozelle also established firmly that although the two leagues will not formally merge until 1970, he is the top man starting immediately.

"I am commissioner of both leagues—as of right now," he said.

Asked why the AFL had to pay the NFL, Rozelle said: "A portion of it must go to the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers for encroachment on their territorial agreements. We did the same for Washington when we moved a franchise into Baltimore."

Rozelle was making reference to the fact that the Giants and AFL's New York Jets and the 49ers and the AFL's Oakland Raiders share the same market.

In addition, Rozelle said, "Our owners felt that in recognizing and joining with AFL teams, we were adding value to their franchises."

Rozelle also left no doubt that any player contracts signed with a rival league for 1967 would be voided under the terms of the agreement which stipulates that there can be no inter-league trades before 1970.

Rozelle also made a distinction between the cases involving soccer-style kicker Pete Gogolak and quarterback Roman Gabriel.

Gogolak played out his option with the AFL's Buffalo Bills and signed with the NFL's New York Giants. Gabriel, a member of the Los Angeles Rams, is reported to have signed a contract with the AFL's Oakland Raiders to begin play in 1967.

Flag-Hungry Detroit Making a Big Noise

By BEN OLAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

The pennant-hungry Detroit Tigers are making more noise in the American League race now that their big gun, Al Kaline, is taking a firmer hold at the plate.

Kaline was in a Baltimore trade school in 1945 when Hank Greenberg, then Detroit's hot shot runner, came out of the Army and honored the Tigers into the World Series. They haven't won an AL flag since.

Kaline, who underwent surgery for a foot malfunction last fall, hammered two homers and drove in three runs as Detroit edged Boston 5-4 Wednesday night. The veteran outfielder kept his team in the game until Don Wert walked with the bases filled in the 11th, forcing in the winning run.

The other AL games were close, too. Cleveland edged the New York Yankees 2-1, Baltimore beat Washington 6-5 in 14 innings, Kansas City defeated Minnesota 5-4 and California blanked the Chicago White Sox, 1-0.

In the National League, Atlanta downed the New York Mets 7-6, Houston trounced San Francisco 6-1, the Chicago Cubs walloped Los Angeles 8-1, Philadelphia outslug Cincinnati 10-6 and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh, 1-5.

Kaline's performance lifted his totals to eight homers and 24 runs batted in and increased his batting average to .291. He hit .281 last season when the Tigers finished fourth.

The victory was the Tigers' seventh in their last eight games and enabled them to remain only one game back of Cleveland and Baltimore. The Indians lead by six percentage points.

The Tigers tied the game 4-4 in the eighth on Kaline's second homer. Jim Northrup opened the 6th with a single and raced to third when Joe Foy muffed pitcher Don McMahon's throw on Willie Horton's bunt. Bill Freehan walked, filling the bases. McMahon then walked Wert and Northrup stroled home with the winner.

Jim Gosger hammered two homers and Tony Conigliaro one for Boston.

Sam McDowell, making his first appearance in two weeks, enabled the Indians to maintain their slim league lead. The fireballing left-hander, who had been sidelined with a sore arm, relieved starter Gary Bell after Mickey Mantle opened the ninth with a single. McDowell retired the next three batters on fly balls.

The Yanks scored their only run in the seventh when Roger Maris singled and scored on Joe Pepitone's double. The Indians picked up their first run in the second on doubles by Max Alvis and Joe Azcue. The second run came in the fourth when Fred Whitfield singled, stole second and later scored when Azcue grounded into a double play.

Baseball Is Before Court in Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —

Baseball went before the Wisconsin Supreme Court today to argue that the state had no authority to order it to return Milwaukee to the major leagues.

The National League and its 10 members clubs asked the state's highest court to throw out their antitrust conviction.

There were indications the court would try to rule on baseball's appeal in early summer, perhaps by the mid-season All-Star game July 12.

The league is under order by a Milwaukee County Circuit Court to bring the Braves back from Atlanta unless Milwaukee is assured a 1967 expansion team.

That order has been suspended until the appeal is decided. The battle, first major challenge to baseball's antitrust immunity in 44 years, may go as high as the U.S. Supreme Court before it is settled.

Wisconsin, which filed the antitrust suit nearly a year ago, said Wednesday in its reply to the appeal that no other state had suffered such harm at the hands of baseball.

"Never before in its modern history has baseball ever completely abandoned a community," the state said.

NBA Shaken by Reserve Clause Ban

By GORDON BEARD

Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Officials of the National Basketball Association seem somewhat less than shaken by a players' suggestion that the reserve clause be eliminated from NBA contracts.

The NBA players association made the proposal Wednesday as the league's board of governors wound up a two-day meeting.

Walter Kennedy, NBA president, said the matter would be referred to a standing committee, and reviewed at a special meeting to be called sometime late in July.

But Kennedy said the primary purpose of the July meeting would be to discuss officiating in the NBA and the possibility of a merchandising program to promote the league through the sale of various articles.

Oscar Robertson, of the Cincinnati Royals and president of the players' group, and attorney Larry Fleisher outlined the suggestions of the association.

"We discussed the items briefly and then referred them to a standing committee including Ned Irish of New York, Earl Foreman of Baltimore and Fred Zollner of Detroit," Kennedy said.

Surfing Champ, Makes Fear Work

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—On the other side of the island of Oahu from Honolulu, there's a beach called the Banzai Pipeline. Surfers come riding in on the crest of the waves, yelling at the top of their lungs.

They yell because if they silently contemplated what they're doing, they'd realize what damn fools they are.

Felipe Pomar is a breed apart. He doesn't yell. Maybe that's why he's billed as the world's champion surfer.

Felipe looked sensible enough in a russet-colored sports coat that blended well with the tanned freckles on his nose. He's a Peruvian, from Lima, where the surf crashes in with such splendor that kids naturally want to challenge it.

"The challenge is similar to mountain climbing," said Felipe. "You want to ride and control the biggest wave in the world. You're up against the ocean, one of the great forces of nature, in 25 to 30-foot waves that even boats won't get near. You're on your own. No one can help you."

So what's it like? "The sensation is indescribable. Every guy who's come to Hawaii and ridden 25-foot waves has stayed there."

Felipe came to Hawaii the way Hilary gravitated toward Mount Everest. Lindbergh took on the Atlantic, Captain Ahab went after Moby Dick. The challenge is supreme. The Hawaiian beaches have the best waves for surfing.

"You can't surf on just any wave," said the 22-year-old champ. "You need a certain type—a wave that breaks all at once is no good. It should peel off. That way you get a very long ride. I understand there's a place in South Africa you can go more than a mile."

Now don't get the idea Felipe spends all his time qualifying for a role in "Beach Blanket Bingo" or such other frippery. The young man who comes in from the water goes direct to his classes at Church College of Hawaii, a little Mormon school situated at Laie—not far, of course, from the Banzai Pipeline.

He's a psychology major with a 3.5 average out of a possible 4.0, and he's already applying his studies.

"The secret of surfing," he said, "is to make the fear work for you."

The fear comes from standing on a thin board which accelerates from 0 to 35 miles an hour in an interval of two seconds.

"As you become better," he explained, "you take more chances. You have to know how to fall. Miss once, and you might not get another chance. I got wiped out once on a three-foot wave, the board hit me in the head and I wound up with 10 stitches."

According to Felipe, there are only 20 surfers in the world who'll tackle the big waves of the type found off Oahu. He listed George Downing and Bobby Cloutier of Hawaii, Buzzy Trent and Fred Van Dyke of California and Charley Galanto of New Jersey as the leaders of the "in" crowd.

Three types of boards are prevalent: a "gun" for the biggest waves, a semigun or intermediate and the "hot dog" for flashy maneuvering.

Felipe, using a semigun, won the world championship in his native Peru in February, 1965. He'll defend his title somewhere off the coast of southern California in September.

He's wondering about it. Last time Felipe tried surfing in California was when he left Peru in 1963 to attend school in San Francisco.

"The water," he said, "it was too cold."

Apparently, there comes a time in the life of every surfer when he has to swim for shore.

The Court-Martial Of Private Barboza

By ROBERT COGNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—(NEA)—The boys and girls danced under crepe paper streamers in the American Legion hall to get a GI out of prison.

As the amplified instruments screeched, Earle Carlsten talked with his colleagues — teachers at Nathan Bishop Junior High School — and with friends and politicians who collected $500 to help correct an alleged miscarriage of military justice.

Gene Barboza would have been pleased. But Gene happened to be 1,600 miles west of Providence that evening, swabbing down the kitchen of the Army's disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Barboza, 19 and a paratrooper, is serving a 20-year sentence for murder.

He's grateful he didn't get the firing squad, because that is the Army's ultimate penalty for killing a man. On the other hand, he may be wondering why he is in jail because all he thought he did was his duty when he fired at a prowler in Santo Domingo.

The young Dominican was killed as he prowled about a U.S. hospital in Santo Domingo last October. There were no eyewitnesses.

There are several questions about the court-martial of Private First Class Barboza and Earle Carlsten and the people who attended the Barboza Defense Fund Dance want the answers.

Carlsten, a 59-year-old physical education teacher at Bishop Junior High, has known thousands of young men since he began teaching 30 years ago.

"I should be a pretty good judge of character by now," the chunky coach says. "And that's why I was so shocked when I read in the paper that Gene had shot somebody in the Dominican Republic and had been sentenced to 20 years at hard labor."

"I know Gene well and I have complete faith in his integrity. I felt that something was wrong and I wanted to find out what it was."

Mrs. Celia Barboza
His Mother

Edward Gallogly
His Counsel

Gene Alan Barboza was a quiet, confident student at Nathan Bishop. He was a well-built, wavy-haired, six-footer, an average student and athlete. He tried hard, his teacher recalls.

And he had this thing about the paratroopers. Celia, Gene's pretty mother, who works in a Providence mill and has been long separated from her husband, says he "tried to talk Gene out of it, but he wouldn't listen. He quit high school to join the Army."

On Nov. 16, 1964, Gene became Pvt. Gene Barboza, RA 1440047. First it was basic training at Fort Dix, then medic training at Fort Sam Houston, then, airborne school at Fort Benning.

After two weeks at Fort Bragg, N.C., with Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 504th Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division, he was airlifted to the Dominican Republic in June and found himself in the middle of a revolution.

Capt. Phillip Goddard, M.C., his commanding officer, said he was "a very helpful and competent individual" and "an asset to the platoon."

It was hot last October in Santo Domingo and the republic seethed with tension and unrest.

Gene Barboza got his first taste of action when an enlisted man's club was blown up. He rushed to the scene carrying his medical kit.

"There was a lot of smoke and debris all over the place," he recalled, "and a lot of people running out. I ran up and got a few of the people out so I lined them up along the sidewalk and started treating them." The medic treated American soldiers and Dominican citizens.

On Oct. 16, at 9:45 p.m., Juan Francisco Monte de Oca, 20, was shot in front of San Francisco de Asis Hospital. Minutes later, he was dead.

The bullet was triggered by Barboza, who had just taken over guard duty.

The young soldier was placed in custody, examined by Dr. Goddard and interrogated by John Smith, a member of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division in Santo Domingo.

Barboza, without counsel although he asked for it, signed a statement admitting he did the shooting because he thought the youth was about to plant, or had planted, a bomb near the hospital.

According to testimony given by investigator Smith at Barboza's court-martial, Barboza repeatedly asked to see Goddard. The exchange:

DEFENSE COUNSEL: "He asked to see Dr. Goddard, did he not?"

SMITH: "Yes, sir, he certainly did."

DEFENSE: "There wasn't any question in your mind that he wanted to see Dr. Goddard, is there?"

SMITH: "No, sir."

DEFENSE: "Before he signed the statement?"

SMITH: "No, sir."

DEFENSE: "And that you didn't afford him the opportunity?"

SMITH: "No, sir."

The defense counsel, Edward P. Gallogly, former lieutenant governor of Rhode Island, points out that Barboza did not have access to counsel until 22 days after the incident.

On Dec. 6, 1965, at Fort Bragg, the court-martial of Gene Barboza began. Three days later, it was over and the medic was found guilty of unpremeditated murder and transferred to Leavenworth.

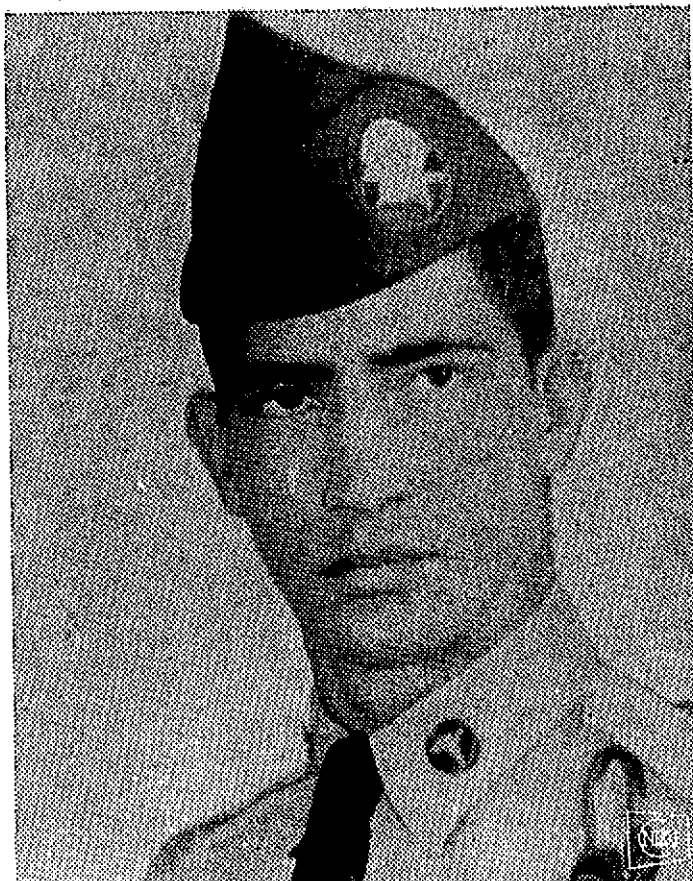

Lt. Col. Guy A. Hamlin, staff judge advocate for Gen. Joe Lawrie, commanding general of the 82nd Airborne, in reviewing the court-martial proceedings, did not recommend clemency. His comment on the verdict:

"We still have many Barbozas on the line performing guard duty amidst unfriendly Dominicans. They, like Barboza, have been told to fire only when fired upon."

"Barboza's sentence not only punishes Barboza but is a lesson to our other troopers. We want no more unnecessary killing. Although the sentence adjudged is far less than the maximum, I consider it not lenient but entirely appropriate."

Defense Counsel Gallogly and teacher Earle Carlsten disagree.

Ed Gallogly, who once clerked for the chief judge of the

Gene Alan Barboza

U.S. Court of Military Appeals, says there are "serious legal questions in the testimony that have never been decided by the Court of Military Appeals."

"My contention," he says, "is the Army Criminal Investigation Division knew Barboza wanted counsel and then he signed a statement that convicted him and he didn't see a lawyer for 22 days."

Furthermore, the attorney says, the Army apparently did not think it important enough to investigate the background of the dead Dominican nor did it attempt to find out why Monte de Oca happened to be in the hospital area.

The pertinent testimony:

GALLOGLY: "Did Barboza tell you that this man (Monte de Oca) invaded the Command Post?"

SMITH: "That's what he told me, sir."

GALLOGLY: "Was that of significance to you?"

SMITH: "Yes, sir."

GALLOGLY: "Did you make an effort to determine what he was doing there?"

SMITH: "No, sir; Barboza said there was no one else there at the time and he (Monte de Oca) was dead."

Therefore, the Army did not know and still does not know if Monte de Oca had a history of guerrilla activities or was an innocent passer-by.

Lt. Col. Jacob Hagopian, executive officer of the defense appellate division of the Army's Judge Advocate General Office in Washington and Barboza's co-defense counsel, assigned himself to the appeal because "I thought it was a significant case."

He added that the defense brief he and Gallogly are preparing for submission to the Board of Review would refer to Escobedo vs. Illinois, the 1964 Supreme Court case which held that persons suspected of criminal acts are automatically entitled to counsel during police interrogations.

Gallogly, in his summation to the court, gave his reasons for defending Gene Barboza:

"I know the Barboza family. I have had training in military justice and I have taught international law and international relations and I have had 23 years in the reserve."

"I have an interest in the military. I have an interest in this boy. I have an interest in our country and I have eight sons of my own whom I expect will very soon be called upon to have the privilege of serving as Barboza is serving now."

Later, Gallogly added:

"Radiating from this case is a cardinal military principle that any man that you ask to accept the responsibility of being a soldier must have commensurate authority to carry out that responsibility, that he cannot have the single shadow of doubt as to his right to use that authority to carry out that responsibility that you give him."

Barboza's fate is not yet sealed. Though he is today viewing the world from behind Leavenworth bars, he may still be set free. Earle Carlsten and Ed Gallogly are convinced he will be.

After defense and prosecution briefs have been submitted to the Board of Review, expected shortly, oral argument will begin.

If the Board reverses the court-martial judgment, Gene Barboza may be released and may once again become the paratrooper he wants to be.

Should the Board sustain, the case will be presented to the Court of Military Appeals.

There is still time. Gene Alan Barboza's time.

Earle Carlsten at Nathan Bishop Junior High. Some of his boys play in the background.

Henry Adams wrote, "affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

Earle Carlsten was never really aware that he had much influence at all. For 30 years he had worked with young men and women, first as a YMCA employee, then as a physical education teacher in the Providence schools.

Summers, Carlsten teaches swimming at the Pelham, N. Y., Country Club. He likes to work with youngsters and youngsters like him. "I don't know why I get a big kick out of watching a kid learn how to jump, or swim, or run—but I do," he says.

Carlsten isn't sure why he got involved in the Gene Barboza case. "I can tell you this," he says, "I never thought it would be so much work."

When he first found that his former student had been convicted of murder and sentenced to 20 years in prison, he began to search for more information.

"I went to the Barboza home and found Mrs. Barboza, Gene's mother, alone, discouraged, ill, without funds and afraid to talk to anyone," he recalls.

"After convincing her I was sincere in my effort to help, she told me she had lost all faith in mankind, had ridden all night to the trial, had come home alone and had locked herself in her third-floor flat, afraid to answer the telephone or doorbell."

"After several sleepless nights trying to decide how to proceed, I decided to organize a Providence Teachers Barboza Defense Committee. We started to raise money."

So far, the Defense Committee has raised about $1,200.

Earle Carlsten didn't stop there. He wrote letters to his local newspaper, appeared as a guest on three radio programs, and asked the local Elks, Masons, American Legion, American Civil Liberties Union and Rotary for help.

He wrote letters to President Johnson, Rhode Island Gov. John Chaffee and United States Senators John Pastore and Claiborne Pell.

Carlsten explains his efforts simply: "Compassion has its own reward."

You Name the Cause . . There's a Button for It

By Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The current passion for identity (Who Am I?) and communication (Now Listen Here!) is not limited to peace marchers, civil rights demonstrators and union pickets.

People who would sooner burn their credit cards than carry a placard in public have succumbed to the latest fad of wearing slogans on their sleeves, lapels, hats and over their hearts.

The practice used to flourish only in election years when campaign buttons proclaimed "I Like Ike" or "All the Way With LBJ" served as a handy device to separate Republicans from Democrats.

The scope of slogans has now been extended to include advice on foreign policy ("Bomb Hanoi"; "Get Out of Viet Nam"; "Make Love, Not War"); draft status ("Help" or simply individual attitudes ("I'm Happy"; "I'm Sad"; "Drop Dead").

The campiest is the succinct button that identifies itself as "Button."

According to psychologists, shy people wear such badges to attract attention and get their message across without speaking; some people wear them to identify themselves with a large group or cause; others find them convenient conversation openers.

When such a trend is in the making, can Madison Avenue be far behind?

Advertisers have swiftly capitalized on the craze, adding a refinement of their own to permit even wider mass distribution of the sales promotion gimmick. Instead of using the traditional metal pins, they are saturating the market place with inexpensive die-cut labels that stick to nearly any surface with finger-tip pressure.

One of the most successful slogan promotions — 13 million "We Try Harder" buttons in 21 languages given away by Avis, Inc. — switched to peel-off labels after spending $125,000 for 5 million pins. Adhesive-backed stickers cost approximately one-tenth as much as metal pins, according to Allen Hollander Company, Inc. of New York, which manufactures such stickers.

The success of the Avis Try Harder button, which found its way into such unlikely places as church pews and Army artillery units, was recently piggy-backed (with Avis permission) by Embassy Pictures. The film company simply crossed out "try" and made its button read "We SPY Harder" to promote the motion picture, "The 2nd Best Secret Agent in the Whole Wide World."

The new type of sticker-button has really grabbed the irrepressible Pepsi Generation, if the demand for "Come Alive" labels is any criterion. The bright red, white and blue slogan pops up on books, go-go boots, jackets, hats, walls, lamps—practically anywhere. A Pepsi-Cola salesman reported that he saw a "Come Alive" button affixed to the gate of a cemetery.

Shoppers are most appreciative of one type of label provided for their own use by thoughtful management in some stores. Dispensers are set up near an entrance and customers may select a blue and white sticker that informs sales people "I'm Just Browsing" or a red and white sticker that states "I'd Like Sales Help."

An increasing number of the most inveterate badge wearers of all—Rotarians, Kiwanians, Lions, fraternal groups and conventioners—are switching to pressure-sensitive labels for instant identification. Not only are these peel-off badges less expensive and more original in design, but they come in strips and can be filled out by hand, typewriter or high-speed computer.

And they stay put in unpinable places, even above a lady's low-cut formal gown.

A Boom Town In the Jungle

PUCALLPA, Peru—(NEA)—Genuine boom towns are hard to find nowadays.

Unless, of course, business or pleasure happens to take you deep into the Peruvian jungle to Pucallpa, the kind of river town a moviemaker dreams about but never seems able to recreate on the screen.

Were it not for the Spanish cerveza (beer) signs slapped on the more than 50 open-air saloons which line the dirt streets, and the grinding ancient Jeeps and Land Rovers, Pucallpa could easily be a cowtown of the old American west.

Cows, however, are not bringing the speculators and adventurers to Pucallpa. The lure here is oil, lumber, rubber and allied manufacturing. And the recently completed jungle highway to Lima has linked the ramshackle community to the world.

Take Harry Wrisson, for example. A sandy-haired, 45-year-old lumberman from Texas, he discovered Pucallpa two years ago, dragged cutting machinery 300 miles across the Andes and is now something of a lumber baron.

"You can't beat it," he says. "There's a lot of wood here,

Cookout Vegetables

More and more families are now using the outdoor grill as a summertime kitchen. Therefore it becomes increasingly important to serve well-balanced meals that are cooked over charcoal.

Broiled meats, poultry and seafood, of course. But vegetables are needed to complete the meal and balance it nutritionally. Here are a few suggestions for "baked" fresh vegetables to include in the back yard barbecue family dinner.

BARBECUE "BAKED" FRESH VEGETABLES

POTATOES: Wrap scrubbed, whole, medium-sized potatoes separately, in aluminum foil. Prick foil with a needle or tines of a fork to allow for escape of steam. Bake over the grill 1 to 1½ hours or until potatoes are tender when tested with a knife. Turn occasionally to bake uniformly. Serve with salt, ground black pepper and butter or margarine.

CARROTS: Wrap scrubbed, whole, peeled fresh carrots (two to a package) in aluminum foil. Bake over the grill 25 minutes or until tender when tested with a knife, turning to cook uniformly.

SNAP BEANS: Wash and cut ends off fresh snap beans. Place each serving on a square of aluminum foil on which place 1 teaspoon butter and a sprinkle of salt. Wrap securely. Bake over grill 20 to 25 minutes or until done, turning to cook uniformly.

BAKED BUTTERNUT SQUASH: Select squash weighing from ½- to ¾-pound. Wash and split in half, lengthwise. Remove seed. Stick 1 whole clove in each end of each half, and sprinkle with a dash each, salt and ground black pepper. Put 1½ teaspoons butter and 2 teaspoons brown sugar in one-half of each squash. Cover with the other half. Wrap each whole squash in aluminum foil, folding and lapping edges so that the melted sugar and butter will not leak out. Bake over grill 2 hours or until soft to the touch.

Add to the many relaxing hours spent around your barbecue this summer—prepare and enjoy the delicious recipes featured in COOK OUT with Gaynor Maddox. This illustrated, 64-page book offers new ideas for kabobs, chicken, steaks and hamburgers. COOK OUT measures 4 inches by 9½ inches—ideal for pants or apron pocket. To order, send your name, address and $1 to: Cook Out, c/o (Name Paper), P.O. Box 489, Dept. (Sectional Zip Code), Radio City Station, New York 19, N.Y.

First 'Dinner'

By Aileen Snoddy
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Beauty-on-a-budget is a practical byword of young brides when it comes to table settings. Especially important is the bride's first dinner party. This may be for her husband's parents or relatives whom the young bride wants to impress or reassure. Some, in fact, never relax when it is time to entertain in-laws.

However, the purpose of this report is not to add hot mustard to a simmering family stew. It is to aid a young bride in approaching such an event eagerly and with confidence.

Taste and imagination come first in such a situation. These qualities overwhelm dime store cups and saucers many dress their tables with in the first years of marriage. Fortunately for all young married couples today, there is an attractive, colorful selection of glassware and tableware on store shelves that costs little money. Select them with care for display and utility.

Set properly on a table with complementary napkins and a floral arrangement or candles, inexpensive items are as pleasing as any setting Tiffany's might offer.

Any table takes on a distinct—the authority of the genuine that is unmistakable. Some lucky brides may start married life with a complete set of sterling for eight. When gift budgets are limited the shrewd bride cuts down on the number of pieces in a place setting—from six to four. The four-piece place setting is the most basic and includes a place knife and fork, salad fork and teaspoon. Add to this through the years.

Don't be afraid to pair sterling place settings with inexpensive mugs and place mats. If you have good crystal and linen, fine. In either case, how it is used keys the total appeal of a dinner table setting.

Patricia Kroh makes this a strong point in her book on contemporary table settings. She points out that the most expensive crystal, silver and china mean nothing when a woman gets carried away with a theme. Keep the setting simple, items balanced according to the table shape and the size. Also limit the number of colors and designs. For example, too many objects of contrasting color break up a basically good table design. If in doubt on the proper way to set a table, visit the local library and browse through books on etiquette and parties.

Better Homemaking

By Aileen Snoddy
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Relaxed, casual living may be the byword generally for life in the suburbs but formality still reigns for weddings. Ask any father of a bride in the process of planning for a June ceremony.

If anything, tradition and the proper observances of ceremony, gift-giving and such are stressed more than in previous years. A major reason is that mothers whose own weddings were less than formal now urge their daughters, and sons, to follow a book of etiquette in planning this special event. The fact that more youths do this reflects their need for a little tradition.

Whatever the reason, there are all-important details to be handled. Usually the mother of the bride becomes the arbiter.

For mothers who are not quite certain of what role they must play and what decisions are theirs to make, there are numerous pamphlets with helpful advice, such as a slim one called the "Wedding Guide for the Mother of the Bride."

Among tips in the booklet are points on how to avoid those last-minute crises.

Unfortunately, it doesn't say how to keep a bride on her feet when she decides to faint three times before starting her march to the altar or what to do when the bridegroom top the list of questions asked them.

• In displaying wedding gifts always keep in mind that the true reason to show them is for the bride to express her appreciation. This is not the time to show off "look." Show wedding gifts at a tea or at a wedding reception in the home but never display them in a country club or in a hotel even though the wedding ceremony takes place there.

• All gifts are shown to best advantage when items of like value or character are arranged together. If there are duplicate gifts, show only one. Do not attach name cards to gifts on display.

• China, crystal, sterling and serving pieces are most attractive when in a place setting, just as a bride would use them. The rest of such sets may be in a chest if sterling or left boxed and kept discreetly out of sight if china and crystal.

However, key each gift so a quick and proper "thank you" note goes to those who sent it.

Usually the burden of suggesting gifts falls to the mother of the bride. A sister or aunt do this if the mother is not living. She becomes the chief gift consultant. A bridal registry in a store helps settle tricky questions and eliminates duplicates.

Tradition plays a large role in the selection of the parents' gift to the bride-to-be. Many parents buy a portion or a full set of sterling flatware.

However, families vary on Display wedding gifts discreetly. Put like items together and arrange a table setting to show the bride's sterling silver and china pattern. As always, the mother of the bride acts as arbiter of wedding and shower manners.

doesn't appear. But the booklet does offer other helpful hints.

A major decision to make is how to guide friends and relatives in their selections of gifts and how to display gifts so no feelings are hurt.

Bridal consultants in department stores throughout the country say such worries traditional gifts. In one family with eight children, for example, the parents gave each a new refrigerator as a wedding gift.

No matter the gift, thanks should be sent promptly. These always are handwritten. The bride should name the gift, even in a short note, and tell how she plans to use it in her new home.

Treat Dad to Long Island Duck

DUCK WITH PRUNE STUFFING is sure to please father.

by Gaynor Maddox
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Father's Day is coming soon. Maybe he likes duck. Millions of men do.

Long Island duck, frozen, is available generally. With a desire to give the fellow a treat on his special day, with a duck in the refrigerator and this recipe in hand, you are set on the path of masculine indulgence. For only one day in the year? That's up to you. But frozen Long Island ducks are available all year round.

LONG ISLAND DUCK WITH PRUNE STUFFING GARNISHED WITH MUSHROOMS

1 five-pound duck
1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons frozen chives

and 2 teaspoons shallots (minced scallions may be substituted)
2 cups seasoned, packaged bread stuffing

1½ cups orange juice
12 plumped, pitted prunes

Rinse a five-pound duck and pat dry. Cut away all fat around openings. Add ¼-teaspoon ginger to 1 teaspoon salt and rub well into inside of duck. Fasten neck skin to back of duck with small skewers. Fill duck from lower opening with prune stuffing and skewer legs together.

Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in preheated oven (425 degrees) 25 minutes. Then lift duck out and pour off excess fat. Wipe roasting pan with paper towels. Return duck to rack and return to hot oven just long enough to set skin sizzling hot (approximately 5 minutes); then dash 1 cup orange juice all over skin. Turn heat down to moderate (325 degrees) and continue to roast 1 hour and 20 minutes longer.

Sauce in pan will be rich and flavorful. Garnish duck on hot platter with big mushroom caps sautéed in butter and very lightly sprinkled with frozen chives.

PRUNE STUFFING

(Serves 4 to 6)

Peel 1 large navel orange and cut through sections to center, leaving orange whole. Remove seeds from 10 plumped prunes. Press prunes into cut orange sections. Sauté 2 tablespoons frozen chives and 2 teaspoons shallots in 2 tablespoons butter for only a few minutes. Stir in 2 cups seasoned, packaged bread stuffing and add just enough orange juice (about ½-cup) to hold crumbs together. Stuff 1 cup of this into duck, then add the prune stuffed orange and add remaining crumb mixture.

You Pay First $40 of Hospital Cost Under Medicare

Your editor finds that almost no one in town knew about Medicare's restriction on "free" hospital treatment until The Star came out yesterday with Sterling F. Green's Associated Press story on Page 2.

The shocker in this story came in the next-to-the-last paragraph, as follows:

"Hospitals dislike the provision under which each elderly patient pays the first $40 of his bill because they suspect many aged persons are not aware of this so-called deductible."

And yet it is a necessary and reasonable restriction.

Federal politicians are up against a voting dilemma which makes the "deductible" clause mandatory. They want the votes of elderly persons, therefore aid them in paying hospital expenses. But the politicians have to keep the support of the majority, comprising people who still work and pay taxes — and if the working taxpayers ever get the idea they were going to have to pay the entire support of folks who didn't lay up a dime for their old age then an angry citizenry would turn the politicians out of office.

The result is a compromise in which you pay the first $40 of hospital costs personally.

Proof that is necessary is drawn from the experience of private insurers in handling automobile damage claims. Trying to underwrite every minor damage was prohibitively costly. It put the average car owner in the position of paying for a host of minor losses incurred by careless drivers — against which he rebelled. Introduction of the "deductible" clause, where you pay the first $50 or so, was a necessary and reasonable restriction. Without it there is doubt that automobile insurance would be as successful as it is today.

And the same partnership-in-trouble idea applies to Medicare.

U.S. for Thant's Re-election

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States went on record Tuesday night in favor of the re-election of U Thant of Burma as secretary-general of the United Nations.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey gave the endorsement in remarks prepared for a reception at the U.S. Mission to the U.N. Humphrey in speaking forgot to give his statement about Thant, and U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg later said on the vice president's behalf:

"He (Thant) is a great international servant, and it is no secret that the United States government is among those who hope he will be available for re-election as secretary-general this fall."

Thant has promised to say late this month whether he will take a second five-year term. His first term expires Nov. 3.

Beagle Wasn't Cooperative

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lucie Johnson was a perfect hostess but her father's beagle "Him" wasn't very cooperative when a 4-year-old Paul C. Hawkins, the Muscular Dystrophy Association's national poster child, visited the White House Tuesday.

Paul brought along a green rubber bone. Lucie said "Him" came in and met the tow-haired youngster from Dillon, Mont.

But the dog merely sniffed the bone and flopped down on his back.

Lucie introduced Paul, his sister, Danette, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawkins, to her fiancé, Patrick J. Nugent.

Asks Bonds for Water Development

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe has filed a bill with the Legislature calling for a 10-year, $5-million bond issue for water resource development.

Volpe said in a message that no relief from the state's five-year drought can be expected soon. He said "far more extensive information" is needed for water planning. Volpe said the bond issue would be matched by federal grants.

Alma Leaves 45 Dead, Florida Set for Heavy Tides

Tornadoes in Kansas Kill 13 Persons

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Alma, leaving a trail of at least 39 dead behind, thundered toward another landfall in the Florida Panhandle today after clawing the length of the state's west coast.

As the hurricane whirled up the Gulf of Mexico just offshore, heavy tides rolled across the beaches in the storm's wake, but did not reach the dangerous proportions that had been feared.

At St. Petersburg, where Alma came closest to the mainland, water running three to five feet above normal inundated beach roads and closed roads and bridges connecting a chain of offshore resort islands.

The predicted tides of 7 to 10 feet above normal would have wreaked havoc along great stretches of gulf beaches.

A curve to the northwest track apparently took Tallahassee, Florida's capital city of 60,000 population, out of range of Alma's strongest winds.

The weather bureau predicted that the hurricane would reach the area of Apalachicola in a few hours and winds would rise rapidly from Apalachee Bay westward to Fort Walton Beach. A possibility of tornadoes existed in north Florida and south Georgia.

Youth Asked LBJ to Keep Hill Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young Robert Douglass Jr. lives by the hills and loves them. He wrote a letter of protest to President Johnson because "the men are wrecking the hill to make room for the people." He got a Cabinet-level reply.

This was the penciled letter, complete with spelling, from Robert, 8, who lives at 1200 Lynnwood Drive, Novato, Calif.:

"Dear M. R. Jonstion. How could we keep people from coming in to California and Marin county. Because people come in and the men have to wreck our hill's and fills, and our rivers and woods to make room. Anama's get killed and then we don't have any animals. It only takes the men 30 seconds to wreck the Indian mound and it took the Indian 300 year to build the mounds.

"I love the hill and and fills and river because I live by hills and the men are wrecking the hill to make room for the people."

The White House referred the letter to Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall. His reply, made available to reporters today, said in part:

"It is with a feeling of mingled pleasure and sadness that I write in answer to your fine letter to President Johnson. I am sorry that your hill and fields are disappearing under the bulldozers' tracks and am very pleased and impressed with your mature reaction.

"When you say 'I live by hills' you are expressing something deeply imbedded in your nature as well as a statement of geographical fact. For countless centuries men have lived by hills and fields and rivers, and when these things are covered up by a cement and steel and glass topping, we feel rootless and uncomfortable.

"You have put your finger precisely on the problem when you say 'to make room for the people,' and unfortunately no one yet has figured out how to 'keep people from coming.' I do, however, have a deep appreciation for the frustration you feel at seeing your natural surroundings disappearing to make room for more and more people.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Tornadoes battered widely scattered sections of eastern Kansas Wednesday night including the state's capital city where it gouged a 15-mile path of destruction. The storms left at least 13 dead, nearly 600 injured, and damage in the millions.

Topeka, the state capital, was hardest hit, with 12 dead. An estimated 450 persons were treated for various injuries. At least 50 were hospitalized. Police and volunteer workers dug through rubble throughout the night seeking trapped and injured residents. About 4,500 were left homeless.

Manhattan, home of Kansas State University, 60 miles west of Topeka, suffered heavy property damage. About 65 persons were injured. Tornadoes also caused damage at Wolcott, Jarbalo, Basehor and Lansing.

Maj. Gen. Joe Nickell, adjutant general of the Kansas National Guard, said the funnel appeared to bounce off Burnett's Mound, a landmark in the southwest section of Topeka, then dropped into a heavily populated residential area. It then raked Washburn University, causing extensive damage to almost every building on the 160-acre campus.

Hurricane Killed 12 Crossing Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Hurricane Alma claimed 12 lives and caused extensive damage to property and crops in its sweep across Cuba, press reports said today. There was no estimate as yet in dollar loss.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro toured some of the stricken areas Wednesday.

Crops wiped out included 13,400 acres of banana trees, 18,090 acres of corn and equally large areas of fruit trees. The winds blew down 96 tobacco storehouses but the tobacco was removed to safety beforehand.

In Havana itself hundreds of trees were bowled over and windows blown out of many buildings. Part of the city was without electricity until early this morning. The city's water distribution system was damaged.

Havana Radio said huge tides swept ashore on the south coast of Havana Province, damage to the small town of Bejucal was described as incalculable.

Board to Study Cause of Collision

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) A 30-man board is beginning a detailed investigation into the collision between the giant XB70A research bomber and an F104 jet chase plane which killed record-holding X15 pilot Joseph A. Walker and the bomber's copilot.

The XB70A's pilot, Al White, 48, ejected in a capsule seat Wednesday, suffering only bruises and shock.

Also killed was Maj. Carl Cross, White's copilot, whose body was recovered from his capsule ejection seat near the wreckage of the bomber.

Court Gives Plaque to Mr. Johnson

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Jim Johnson, one of eight Democratic candidates for governor, has been presented a bronze plaque by the Arkansas Supreme Court in recognition of "his faithful and distinguished service" on the high court.

The award is traditionally given to Supreme Court members when they leave the court. A court official said Wednesday that Johnson requested a private presentation. He served on the court from 1959-1966 before resigning to make the gubernatorial race.

7,350 Registered in Hempstead

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Voter registrations in Arkansas stood at 475,697 persons, through May 31 in 58 counties state Auditor's office said Wednesday.

Twenty additional counties were included in the latest report. Previously the Auditor's office had reported the other 36 counties' registration figures.

Counties reported Wednesday and the number of voter registered under Amendment 51 were: Desha 6,819, Drew 5,337, Faulkner 10,770, Hempstead 7,350, Jefferson 22,978, Johnson 4,993, Lawrence 6,237, Lincoln 4,699, Logan 6,443, Mississippi 15,320, Monroe 5,900, Newton 2,786, Pope 7,753, Prairie 3,908, Randolph 4,765, Scott 3,217, Sharp 3,086, Stone 3,068, Union 18,474 and Woodruff 4,575.

Meredith to Take Up Arms, Raps Hospital

By BOB GILBERT SENATOBIA, Miss. (AP) — The James H. Meredith Mississippi march has led to a related protest in Memphis. In New York, Meredith pledged to return — armed if necessary.

Footsore after adding 6 1/2 miles to the 27 Meredith walked before he was shot, many of the Negroes staged another three-mile walk Wednesday night from a Memphis church to the hospital where Meredith was treated. They claimed Bowled Hospital mistreated the 33-year-old law student in his two-day stay there.

On returning home, Meredith told newsmen:

"I will be armed when I return unless I have positive assurances that arms are not needed.

"I believe in law and order, but if the whites continue to kill Negroes, then the Negroes will have to join together to resist this slaughter."

Meredith said he still is weak from loss of blood and that he has been ordered by his doctor to rest for a week before returning to the South.

Kindergarten Issue Needs Signatures

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Congress of Parents and Teachers says it needs about 65,000 more signatures on petitions to place a kindergarten constitutional amendment on the November election ballot.

The congress said it had about 5,000 of the required 60,000 signatures with the July 1 deadline just three weeks away.

The proposal would remove the age limit for free public education in the state and allow local school districts to establish kindergartens. Districts would not be required to provide pre-school education.

The age limit for free public education is between 6 and 21.

New Liberty to Hold a Revival

The New Liberty Baptist Church, five miles south of Emmet, will start a revival Sunday June 12, with services daily at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Chester Bullock will do the preaching. The Rev. Jimmy Lewis is the Missionary Pastor.

Buddhist Foes of Ky Do an About Face, Disavow Neutralism

Cong Ambush Fails, 250 Are Left Dead

By EDWIN Q. WHITE SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Vietnamese troops, with U.S. air support, reported killing 250 Viet Cong after beating off a Viet Cong ambush 48 miles north of Saigon a government military spokesman said today.

The heavy new fighting erupted in a moment of calm in South Viet Nam's political crisis, indicating the Communists may be moving to the offensive again after waiting fruitfully for premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime to collapse in the face of Buddhist pressure.

The Buddhist Institute's moderate chairman, Thich Tam Chau, called on U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge apparently to get his support for the Buddhists' new campaign of nonviolence against Ky.

The monk's major rival in the Buddhist movement, Thich Tri Quang, went into the second day of a hunger strike in Hue protesting the government and U.S. support of it.

The government military spokesman said three battalions of Viet Cong — possibly 1,000 men — ambushed a Vietnamese army supply convoy on highway 13 Wednesday. The government troops immediately called for heavy infantry and artillery reinforcements and U.S. planes roared in. When the battle ended, the Communists left behind three recoilless rifles and 50 other weapons.

Youth, 13, Best in Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert A. Wake, a crew-cut 13-year-old from Clear Creek Junior High, Houston, Tex., won the 39th annual National Spelling Bee today, outclassing 70 other young champs from around the country.

The runnerup was Beth Sherrill, 14, from Lucy, Tenn.

In a tense windup, Beth succumbed to an Indian chief — a sachem. She spelled it "sachem."

Teachers Urged to Shun Bradford

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRADFORD, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Education Association members have been urged to not accept a teaching position in the Bradford School District in White County.

The recommendation came from the AEA's Board of Directors after the association's Professional Rights and Responsibilities Commission said in a report that three teachers in the district were fired without cause.

The 9-member commission was established last year and Bradford became the second district to be censured by it. Similar action was taken last week against the White Hall School District.

Russia to Avoid War Involvement

An AP News Analysis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Special Correspondent Premier Alexei Kosygin has told the Soviet people and the Communist world, in effect, that the U.S.S.R. will avoid becoming any more deeply involved in Viet Nam than it is at present.

He counseled that patience will pay dividends in the long run.

In a speech in Moscow Wednesday, the Soviet government chief offered this assessment of Viet Nam:

"Administration advisers in Viet Nam did a disservice to the U.S. government because 'they had prepared recommendations as to where and how the war should be started, but had not recommended how to get out of it.'"

"This," he said, "is precisely the question which now worries the most sober-minded leaders of the United States."

Significantly, this discussion of Viet Nam immediately preceded an appeal to the rest of the world's Communists to show patience with Soviet policy and to present a united front to the rest of the world.

He said he was convinced "the time will come" when China's Communists will close ranks with Soviet Communists. The phraseology indicates Kosygin by no means thinks that time is the near future.

Indeed, party relations between Peking and Moscow are worse now than they ever have been and show signs of further deterioration. Evidently the Soviet Communists expect little of benefit to themselves to come out of a current widespread party purge inside Red China.

PSC Approves Construction

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Public Service Commission approved Wednesday Southwest Arkansas Electric Co-operative's proposal to spend $73,824 improving its facilities in Polk County.

The project includes two miles of 69,000-volt transmission lines and additions to a substation at Wickes.

Bridal Gifts Easy to Do

Personal gifts for a bride leave lasting memories. A delicate lace handkerchief (left) is worn during the wedding ceremony. Later simple sewing turns it into a christening bonnet for the first baby. Youngsters like to help, too, and napkins folded as water lilies (right) to accompany a pretty tablecloth makes a festive family gift for the bride.

By Aileen Snoddy
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Very personal gifts for a bride are remembered through the years. One such present that fits this special category is the bridal handkerchief.

A crisp, white, beautifully edged hanky tucked within a sleeve or pocket of the bridal gown is an age-old tradition. But in this era of action with little thought such an item often is forgotten.

The gift has lasting meaning primarily because it can be handed down through the family. After its use in the wedding ceremony, the hanky can be turned into a christening bonnet for the first child, taken apart for the marriage of the child years later.

Select a richly laced handkerchief and include instructions for turning it from hanky to bonnet and back in the package.

The makers of Niagara starch suggest this method of making a bonnet for baby: Select a 11- to 12-inch handkerchief. Use spray starch and iron it crisp and square. Fold handkerchief in half and fold in half again so a square a quarter of the original size is formed. Slipstitch folded edges together.

Maintain a double thickness and open the square out to form a point. Bring point down 1½ inches along stitched edge to form a triangle and tack in place. This forms a basic hat shape. For further shaping, backstitch two ¼-inch darts about 2 inches long, 1½ inches from either side of center back. Finish with ribbon rosettes or bows and narrow ribbon ties. Since all is hand-stitched, merely clip the thread to return hanky to original form.

Another gift idea for the bride is a set of pastel napkins with contrasting tablecloth. Fold the tablecloth into a box and then fancy-fold napkins on top so a flower-like effect is obtained.

Even if you are all thumbs try this water lily fold: spray napkin with spray starch and press crisply square. Lay napkin flat and then fold four corners to the center. Repeat by folding four new corners to the center and repeat again.

Turn napkin over carefully. Again fold corners to center. Use a tumbler set in the center of the napkin to hold folds in place. Then gently pull fold from underneath each of the top four corners, then pull folds from the intermediate points. Finally pull folds from under original corners.

You will find the water lily is a gift the children in the family will like to help you make. They'll get great pleasure pointing out their handiwork to reception guests.

ICED TEA AND FRUIT AMBROSIA go together.
by Gaynor Maddox
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

According to mythology, ambrosia and nectar were the food and drink of the gods on Mt. Olympus. No one knows exactly what they were. Today the words are used to describe food and drink that is exquisitely delicious and gratifying. More particularly, in recipe parlance, ambrosia has come to mean a fruit desert—usually orange slices mixed with coconut.

The nectar can well be iced tea. It's refreshing, it's thirst-quenching, it's nonfattening.

Neither the recipe for ambrosia nor for nectar will make you immortal like the gods. But they will make you happy, especially in summer.

THREE-FRUIT AMBROSIA
(Makes 6-8 servings)
1 (1-pound) can Royal Anne cherries
1 (11-ounce) can mandarin oranges
1 (13½-ounce) can pineapple tidbits
½ teaspoon aromatic bitters
6 stalks mint

Flaked coconut
Few maraschino cherries, optional

Remove pits from the cherries. Put the cherries, oranges, pineapple tidbits with the syrups from the cans in a bowl or refrigerator container. Stir in the bitters and grate mint in the mixture. Cover tightly and refrigerate overnight. When ready to serve, remove mint and discard. Drain fruit and place in serving bowl. (Save the drained syrup for future use in tea punch.) Sprinkle with flaked coconut. Garnish with sprig of mint and a few maraschino cherries.

HOW TO MAKE PERFECT ICED TEA

1. Bring 1 quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan.
2. Remove from the heat and immediately add ¼-cup loose tea or 15 teabags.
3. Stir. Brew 5 minutes, uncovered.
4. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding an additional quart of freshly drawn cold water.

Jack Sheldon:
Big on CBS Tube

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

CBS had a hoopla to generate enthusiasm among the press for its coming television season. Highspots were a banquet at which all the CBS stars were introduced, and a quick trip to San Francisco for kicks.

At the banquet, I sat with CBS President John Reynolds and Danny Kaye. Well, actually I sat with CBS President John Reynolds and a transistor radio, because Danny kept his palm-sized transistor in his ear all night listening to the Dodgers' game. Reynolds applauded politely as each star was introduced but it was only when Jack Sheldon stood up that he was genuinely appreciative.

"That boy," he said, "is going to be a very big star some day."

Sheldon will star in a new series, Run, Buddy, Run, on the network this fall.

During the San Francisco trip, a group of us—purely as a psychological experiment—looked in on the North Beach night clubs. Here is where the topless dancers originated and still flourish and the whole atmosphere is tawdry and depressing.

We were driven back to our hotel by a taxicab driver who is a psychology student at San Francisco State. I asked him what they'll think of to top the topless—what can possibly come next?

"Did you ever hear of S.M.?" he asked. We hadn't. He explained that S.M. means Sado-Masochism and already there is one small club where a girl lectures on the fine points of sadism and masochism. Eventually, the cabbie predicted, there will be live demonstrations.

Culture marches on.

AT THAT CBS BANQUET, Linda Kaye Henning came over to our table to talk to John Reynolds. The pretty young star of Petticoat Junction used to date Reynolds' son and politely paid her respects to him.

Linda is still billed as Linda Kaye on Petticoat Junction but she doesn't like it. When the series started, she agreed to use that name to please her father, Paul Henning, who originated and produced the series.

"He was afraid I'd be hurt," Linda says, "because people might think I got the part (Betty Jo) through him, which I didn't. But I never liked the name—I can't get used to people calling me Miss Kaye. That's not my name."

Gradually she is trying to get back to her real name, by first going through a Linda Kaye Henning step and then, hopefully, she can be just Linda Henning again.

Linda Whatever-Her-Name-Is still lives at home, which is rather unusual. Most Hollywood girls can't wait until they can leave home and get a small house with a large mortgage. But Linda says she's still happy with her parents.

Chilled Soups Gain Popularity

More and more Americans are learning to enjoy chilled vegetable and fruit soups for summer meals. This European idea fits easily into our modern menus which are built around variety, good nutrition and something new.

Here are two we think you'll enjoy "all on a summer's day."

GASPACHO MAS FINO

- (Serves 7)
- 4 slices bread
  - 2 cups cold water
  - 5 large, ripe tomatoes, diced
  - 1 clove garlic, mashed
  - 3 tablespoons olive oil
  - 1/2 cup finely diced fresh green pepper
  - 1/2 cup finely diced cucumber
  - 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
  - 4 teaspoons salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- Soak bread in cold water 30 minutes. Add tomatoes, garlic and oil. Let stand 2 to 3 hours. Mash and put through sieve or blender. Add green pepper, cucumber, lemon juice, salt and black pepper. Serve very cold with crackers.

CHILLED VEGETABLE SOUP AND FRUIT team for summer fun.

CHILLED FRESH STRAWBERRY SOUP

- (Serves 6)
- 2 quarts capped fresh strawberries
  - 1/4 cup sugar

- 4 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
  - 4 teaspoons cornstarch
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/2 cups cold water
  - Few drops red vegetable coloring (optional)
- Crush strawberries and put through a coarse strainer. Blend in lemon juice and set aside. Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan. Blend in cold water. Bring to boiling point and cook 1 to 2 minutes or until transparent. Remove from heat and stir in pureed strawberries. If color is not deep enough add a few drops of red vegetable coloring. Chill and serve.

A Vote For the Box Office

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — On the day after somebody planted the first orange tree in Hollywood came the first argument over whether movies should aim for artistry or commercialism.

And they're still arguing. Stephen Boyd stands four-square on the side of commercialism, hastening to point out that "commercialism" means that a lot of people go to see the movie.

Exhibit A of his philosophy is "The Oscar," which was brutally torn apart by most big city critics. Nevertheless, it is a rousing box-office success. And Boyd says he is very glad he starred in it.

"The public is going to see it," Boyd says, "and they apparently like it. To me, that's what matters. I don't think most of the reviewers are in tune with the public's taste. And movies ought to be made to please and entertain the majority of the public, not the minority of critics."

Boyd was given this hypothetical situation: Suppose he had his choice of making a movie which brought critical raves but was spurned by the public, or a picture which was a critical flop but a box office hit.

"I'd do the one the public liked," he said.

Of course, there is always the faint hope that one film can please both audiences. Boyd says he thinks maybe his next film—"The Caper of the Golden Bulls"—might realize that hope.

"Suppose," he said, "there were two artists—painters—sitting at this table. And suppose one was an artist acclaimed by the critics, but penniless. And the other was a hack, a commercial artist, whom the critics dismissed, but he'd made a million dollars from his work."

"I'd have more respect for the commercial artist. He can buy his own lunch."

In common with many

OLD ARGUMENT—Actor Stephen Boyd takes his stand in the ageless Hollywood argument, artistry vs. commercialism. "The public's taste" is what matters, he says.

Hollywood actors, Boyd feels that many critics automatically dislike any Hollywood product, automatically adore any foreign-made product.

"The foreign film," he says, "may be—as most of them are—a look at the slums of human nature, and this is O.K. as long as it isn't from Hollywood."

"I think an actor has to build a house when he plays a part, a complete house. It is all right to show that the house has garbage cans, but the actor should show that the house has other things, too. "The foreign films show you the garbage cans but neglect to show you the rest of the house. Funny, but the critics never mention that."

For Stephen Boyd, "The Oscar" was a major step. "It meant a rebirth of my career, that's all," he says. "Before 'The Oscar,' I was in sandals in those costume dramas. Now I am in shoes and it's a good feeling."

Few Arkansans in Million Dollar Income Class, Many Over $10,000 Year Bracket

By GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arkansas doesn't have many taxpayers in the million-dollar income class but it is pretty well represented among those with annual incomes of $10,000 and over.

Then the year 1963, the latest for which the Internal Revenue Service has compiled and published statistics.

In that year, the report shows, one Arkansas taxpayer had an adjusted gross income of $4,242,000.

But 31,934 Arkansans reported gross incomes of $10,000 or more.

This was out of a total of 502,876 Arkansans who filed federal income tax returns.

The one taxpayer with the million dollar plus income—who was unidentified, of course—claimed only one exemption, had taxable income of $2,320,000 and paid a tax of $1,414,000.

The 31,934 taxpayers with incomes of $10,000 or more claimed a total of 119,934 exemptions, had taxable income of $394,469,000 and on this income paid taxes totaling $104,185,000.

For the state as a whole 502,876 individuals filed federal returns, claimed a total of 1,476,000 exemptions, gross income of $2,138,214,000 and taxable income of $1,043,727,000 and paid taxes totaling $323,361,000. Of the individuals 360,880 reported incomes of $5,000 or under, 110,059 had incomes between $5,000 and $10,000 and the 31,934 had incomes over $10,000.

There were 96 Arkansans individuals who reported incomes for the year of $100,000 or more.

Arkansas was a little short in the million-dollar income category since nationally a total of 351 individuals reported incomes over $1 million. Ohio for instance, had 110, New York 85 and California 40.

Arkansas' Congressional delegation strongly supported legislation—passed by the House and Senate in slightly different form—aimed at aiding farmers unable to plant crops on allotted acreages because of rains, floods and similar disasters.

Originally the bill was limited to cotton farmers since many of them were unable to get into their fields this spring because of continued heavy rains. Since they were unable to plant cotton, they desired the rights to plant an alternate crop, chiefly soybeans in the case of Arkansas.

Under existing law farmers participating in the control programs for cotton—and other controlled crops—who planted their crops and then had them flooded out, are eligible to receive the land-diversion and price support payments they would have received had not their crops been destroyed.

They also could use the land to plant alternate crops.

But the farmer who was unable to plant received no such consideration.

So bills were introduced by the Arkansans and others to extend the same privileges to farmers who were unable to plant cotton. Ultimately the House Agriculture Committee, of which Rep. E. C. Gathings, D-Ark., is a member, approved a bill which applied not only to cotton farmers but to producers of wheat, corn and feed grains and was extended to cover droughts as well as floods.

As passed by the House the bill would make farmers eligible for price support payments even though they were unable to plant and would enable them to plant alternate crops.

The bill came under heavy fire from some senators and ultimately they wrote into it a provision limiting payment to any one individual to $10,000.

This limitation is opposed by many of the cotton state congressmen and will be debated when a House-Senate conference committee seeks to draft a compromise bill.

The limitation amendment was offered by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., who argued that a farmer with a normal yield of two bales of cotton per acre would be entitled to federal payments of $105 an acre and at the same time could receive the proceeds from a soybean crop on the same acreage.

"Why pay any farmer $100 an acre on his soybean acreage?" Williams asked.

He got his amendment adopted on a 42-27 vote, with both Arkansas senators—John L. McClellan and J. W. Fulbright, Democrats—opposing it.

APPETIZERS SET THE SCENE

A TRAY OF APPETIZERS SAYS WELCOME. Nothing tells guests that you've looked forward to their arrival better than a festive platter of appetizers. These new recipes for Dill Pickle Roll-Ups, Swiss Kebabs, and Cream Cheese Cornucopias all use pickles to help say, "welcome." All are easy to make and require no cooking or baking.

Ever notice how people perk up when a plate of tempting-looking appetizers appears on the scene? Ever notice, too, that all kinds of people like pickles? A good reason, we thought, for these new recipes for appetizers made with pickles.

Here are three that are as good to nibble as they are easy to make. None of them takes any cooking. Our recommendation: collect the ingredients and utensils you need, sit down at the kitchen table, and have a pleasant time mixing, spreading, and slicing while you listen to a newscast or your favorite serial.

Arrange the appetizers attractively on a platter and serve to family or friends. Chilled tomato juice or a tangy cranberry juice cocktail from a glass jar are just right to sip with them. Plan to allow at least half an hour for good nibbling and you'll find you've set the scene for leisurely enjoyment of a festive dinner.

DILL PICKLE ROLL-UPS

- 1 package (3 ounce) cream cheese, room temperature
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 24 thin lengthwise dill pickle slices
- 12 Vienna or cocktail sausages, cut in half, crosswise
- Wooden picks

Beat cream cheese and mustard until smooth. Spread one side of pickle slices with cheese mixture, using a teaspoonful on each pickle slice. Place a piece of meat at one end of each pickle slice and roll pickle around meat. Fasten with wooden pick. Yield: 24 rolls.

SWISS KEBABS

- 18 tiny sweet pickles, gherkins, or 18 large sweet pickle chunks
- 6 slices bologna, cottage cheese, cut into quarters
- 12 Cheddar or Swiss cheese (1/2 to 1 inch) cubes
- 6 long wooden picks (4 to 6 inch) or skewers

Thread each pick or skewer with one pickle, a piece of sausage, a cheese cube, another slice of sausage, a pickle, a sausage slice, a cheese cube, a slice of sausage, and a pickle. Serves 6.

CREAM CHEESE CORNUCOPIAS

- 1 package (8 ounce) cream cheese, room temperature
- 1/2 cup well drained sweet pickle relish
- 12 slices cottage cheese, summer or New England brand sausage or bologna, cut in half Blend cream cheese and pickle relish. Spread each half slice of sausage with a tablespoonful of pickle mixture. Roll sausage up cornucopia fashion and fasten with wooden pick. Chill. Yield: 24 cornucopias.

The Boutique

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Skin is in. And to really make the scene you have to bare lots of it.

Hemlines are so high that last year's long over blouse could pass as this year's dress. Does it seem possible that only a few years ago a gal could land in the local house-gow for wearing shorts on a city street?

If you don't count the cave adies, the current bare look began in Europe about 10 years ago when the bikini made headlines. "Another french folly," it was called. But sometimes yesterday's folly becomes tomorrow's fashion. The bikini did.

The first timid inroads were made in the last two years at a few avant-garde beaches here. But the harbinger of what's in store for summer 1966 really came on strong during the winter resort season. At such lush Caribbean playgrounds as Condado Beach in San Juan, St. Thomas, V. I. and many others, you couldn't see the sand for the bikinis.

And summer at home will be just as bare. The new skin interest shows signs of reaching every pond and pool in America. And you can bet your bare look it won't stop water side.

Bold young things will carry it to the patio in lacy see-throughs or will play at sports in bikini-cut play togs. Day-time fashions will carry out the nude look with cut-outs and see-throughs in clear vinyl.

But—can we all wear the Bare Look? Granted, everybody likes to swing. And perhaps the "law" is more blasé these days. But the look, sadly, is not for everyone. If there's just a bit more of you than there should be, forget it. The most you can manage is a low back or a plunging neckline. Cut-outs call for a slender figure and good legs. Hoisted hemlines do nothing for knobby or chubby knees. And bikinis are for the favored few with firm, youthful bodies that have never battled the bulge.

It's easy to be fooled about bikinis unless you stand before a three-way, full-length mirror and fix a beady eye on every sweet curve, for you don't have to be fat to find a bikini off limits for you.

Your figure can be whistle-bait when you walk through the office in your basic black. But you won't be wearing a girdle on the beach. And even the slightest midriff bulge will look twice its size if it's bordered top and bottom (like a picture in a frame) with two wisps of brightly colored fabric.

We're told that the bare look is not just for the young but for the young-at-heart, as well. And how many times have you heard that "you're only as old as you feel"? But this is all hogwash, I fear.

The question here is not one of age or attitude. It's a question of form.

What shape are you in? How you "bare up" depends on that answer.

BARBS

By WALTER C. PARKES

At last the status word "in" is really in—in Webster's dictionary, that is.

June graduates who think the world is their oyster had better remember that the month has no "R" in it.

The back yard cookout is where dad does a fast burn and the guests do a slow one.

Round Steak

Deliciously different dishes are easy with Safeway's famous Superb Round Steak. Like the one shown here from an old recipe that's a real inspiration for a family-pleasing meal. Superb Round Steak can be enjoyed in a variety of ways because it's from the finest USDA Graded Choice beef...always more tender and flavorful!

MOCK DUCK

Make about a quart of bread stuffing which calls for poultry seasoning (see your favorite cookbook). Spread stuffing over 2 lbs. round steak (use bottom, top, or full-cut round). Roll up meat and tie with heavy string. In hot shortening in heavy skillet, brown meat rolls on all sides. Place steak rolls in casserole and sprinkle lightly with onion salt and garlic salt. Add 1 cup hot water and cover tightly. Bake in 325-degree oven about 2 hours or until tender; baste frequently and turn occasionally. Make gravy with remaining liquid.
